

<https://www.linkedin.com/jobs/search/?currentJobId=3882033469>

(Associate) Consultant (Gen) AI & Data Strategy (m/w/d)

Capgemini Invent is the global consulting arm of the Capgemini Group for digital innovation, design and transformation. It enables CxOs to shape the future of their companies. To achieve this, over 12,500 employees work in over 30 creative studios and at more than 60 locations worldwide. They combine strategy consulting, data science, product and experience design, brand management and technology know-how to develop new digital solutions, products, environments and business models for a sustainable future.

Be part of our journey

Innovative strategy projects and international teams as well as successful growth in digital future topics
Long-term, value-oriented corporate culture
Transparent career prospects and plenty of room for personal initiative
Individual training in our training program “The Institute” as well as outstanding further training opportunities within a global network of experts
Long-term work-life balance model

Get the future you want

Data and AI as a strategic competitive factor for sustainable companies
Innovative, data-driven solutions along the entire value chain
Transformation of organizations and business models into data-driven companies
Sustainable strategic design of innovative AI and data solutions
Continuous analysis of trends and developments in the area of

AI and data as well as their translation into our customers' technology strategies
Support in the offer process and in the design of our AI strategy offering to acquire new customers

Your skills & career

First practical project experience in the conception and implementation of innovative data and analytics solutions in one of our focus industries
An outstanding degree (Bachelor/Master) with an economic, technical or information technology orientation
Interest and initial experience in the development of technology strategies for AI, analytics and data management
Fun Combination of technological understanding, strategic analysis and implementation work
High reliability, team spirit and fit for a globally leading management consultancy
Excellent presentation and moderation skills as well as very good ones MS Office skills
Excellent German and English skills

The advertised vacancy must be filled all year round.

We look forward to receiving your complete application exclusively via our application portal, stating your salary expectations, the earliest possible starting date and your location preference.

Here you can find further information about our application process.

If you have any questions, please contact karolina.niemczura@capgemini.com.